TO SUCCEED MR. KIMBALL

From the Indianapolis Freeman

There is a strong movement under way to have the administration confer some honorable recognition upon Lawyer Thomas L. Jones, who since his graduation from the law department of Howard University, has held a leading place at the bar of the District of Columbia. His legal ability is pronounced and as an orator he has few, if any equals. He would be as much at home on the bench as pleading at the bar, and taking note of his poise, dignity and judicial temperament, his friends will probably urge the Department of Justice to offer him a position commensurate with his brilliant and solid attainments and in which he can bring to bear his exceptional talents as a barrister or an administrator of justice. It is pointed out that in the District, where one-third of the population is colored, that it would be only fair that one of the judges of the police court should be a member of the Negro race. The unfortunate who are haled before this court often feel that they are given short shift there, and the presence of a jurist of their own color would go far toward re-establishing their confidence in the tribunal. Lawyer Jones would not be lax with any class of criminals, be they colored or white, but his friends are of the opinion that the court would carry a larger degree of influence for law and order if the colored people who are brought there could be led to feel that they are being dealt with by a man who is better able to comprehend their shortcomings, special needs, and difficulties than any white man on earth. As Judge of the Police Court, Lawyer Jones would set a new mark and such an appointment would make a hit with the colored people, and at the same time meet the approval of the local bar and the white citizens who know the high character and impartial judgment of the man proposed for the honor. Lawyer Jones is particularly strong with the colored citizens of Maryland, and his work in that State was productive of excellent results, as the returns for Taft and Sherman indicated. His eloquence is being relied upon this year to defeat the disfranchising amendment, very largely, and there is no doubt that he will be the vital force in rescuing the "old line State" from the hands of those who would continue to hold it back as the tail to the ancient bourbon kite. As a judge or prosecutor of violators of the laws, the Department of Justice would find in Mr. Jones a valuable ally.

It would be well if there could be laid in Washington, at least in purpose, in this Lincoln centennial year, the foundation of a Lincoln Institute, to be devoted to those studies and activities which shall most broadly and efficiently promote the knowledge, maintain the rights and inspire the duty and devotion of the colored race. It might be allied with Howard University or it might be independent. It should be endowed by the most generous gifts of American wealth and public spirit. It should enlist in its service the best scholarship and the best statesmanship of both races, and its management should be in the hands equally of men of the North and the South, who stand alike for those fundamental principles of justice, humanity and progress for which Lincoln stood and stands. It should represent no sectional sentiment; it should be a temple of national duty and national law, and upon the temple's front should be inscribed those great provisions of the Constitution which embody the results of Lincoln's life and work.

are not becoming to very black countenances but they are a beautiful adornment to light brown skin. There are two kinds of 'Complexion Wonder Cream.' No. 1 makes any dark skin lighter. No. 2 gives women with brown skin a very attractive complexion. We recommend our women to use 'Wonder Cream' and the 'Wonder Comb' with 'Uncurl Pomade.' This will improve their faces and make their hair long and dressy. Each article costs 50 cents.
